COUNTY BOARD IS TO START FIGHT

them will answer a question. Mr. Richardson—"With whom do they compare their work to see if it is correct?"

Mr. Weirick—"They haven't compared it—they simply work carefully."

Mr. Richardson—"Doesn't Miss Stoddard do any of the work?"

Mr. Weirick—"Not that I know of."

Mr. Richardson—"You would know, wouldn't you, if either of the deputies assisted?"

Mr. Weirick—"They might do something surreptitiously."

Mr. Richardson—"How many have you employed on the average?"

Mr. Weirick—"I had four and seven for a while and lately there have been as many as eleven."

Mr. Richardson—"What proportion of the abstracts have you got copied?"

Mr. Weirick—"About sixty per cent."

Mr. Richardson—"From whom did you get the books into which the abstracts are being copied?"

Mr. Weirick—"I bought sixteen old volumes of the county purchasing agent's committee. Mr. Clinton made them when he worked in the Gazette building 17 years ago. I can't find him; found out what they were worth; gave the purchasing committee the figures. They agreed to accept that money and I paid for them."

Question—"At the present rate of progress you would complete the books about May?"

Question—"I couldn't say."

Question—"You proposed to complete the copies between the January and May meetings of the county board, didn't you?"

Answer—"I had no such expectation."

Question—"What was the object of this work?"

Answer—"I expect to engage in the abstracting business."

Question—"Would it be possible for you to make such copies after your term expires?"

Answer—"Certainly."

Question—"Could you have all those girls working there?"

Answer—"Why yes, as many as I could get."

Mr. Moore—"Why didn't you wait, then?"

Mr. Weirick—"Well, Mr. Moore, I'm a poor man. I couldn't see how I could use up a year preparing to engage in some other business."

Mr. Gille—"Couldn't you engage in this business without these copies for your own personal use?"

Mr. Weirick—"Yes, but I didn't think it would be just the right thing to be at those books continuously after I had retired from office and continually in the way of the people working there."

Question—"You say that it interferes with business to have people copying the records—how about your employees?"

Mr. Weirick—"I don't allow them to interfere in the least."

Question—"Have you refused to take orders for abstracts on certain occasions?"

Answer—"Yes, but not on account of this. There is an immense amount of business at this time and today we still have from a week to 10 days' work ahead of us."

Question—"You have done none of this copying, yourself?"

Answer—"Not a bit of it."

Mr. Gille—"For how long a time, if any, have you been absent from your office during the past six months?"

Mr. Weirick—"I was gone from Dec. 7, noon, to Dec. 22 and from Jan. 3 to Jan. 13."

Mr. Gille—"Where you abstracting for other parties?"

Mr. Weirick—"Yes."

Mr. Gille—"Was abstract work in this county refused about that time?"

Mr. Weirick—"Not a bit of it."

Mr. Gille—"Since when, then?"

Mr. Weirick—"There was only one case. Mr. Livermore sent Mr. McGuire to the office and the latter wanted an abstract immediately. I said I couldn't take it up under three days. He asked who could do it and I referred him to Mr. Underhills. That was the only piece of abstract work I have not been able to take care of during my term of office."

Question—"Do you consider that you were absent legally?"

Answer—"I am so advised."

Mr. Richardson—"Did you consider that when you were absent continuously the work of your office could be legitimately and properly managed by mere clerks?"

Mr. Weirick—"I had been two or three years without any adequate vacation. It occurred to me that a little jaunt in the northern part of the state would be entertaining."

Question—"And profitable?"

Mr. Weirick—"Yes—it paid my expenses."

Mr. Livermore—"Do you consider that as custodian of Rock county's property you have the same rights as a salaried individual?"

Mr. Weirick—"Why certainly."

Mr. Livermore—"Then if anything is put in your hands in trust, you consider that you may divert it to your own use if you care to do so?"

Mr. Weirick—"I think Mr. Weirick has the same rights as you or I."

Mr. Livermore—"I don't think so. If he is going to divert county property to his own use he should resign. He has a right to go to the official records but not to the abstract books."

Mr. Moore—"How much is the county making a year out of the abstract work?"

Mr. Weirick—"You will find the answer to that in the published proceedings of the board."

Mr. Moore—"It's nearly $2,400, isn't it, and the county gets half. Do you consider that you ought to take this business away from the county?"

Mr. Weirick—"Why I haven't figured out where my business is to come from."

Mr. Gille—"Didn't you seek to get the exclusive use of these books?"

Mr. Weirick—"Yes, I made some such proposition."

Mr. Gille—"And didn't you make a threat that if you didn't get this privilege you would compete with the county?"

Mr. Weirick—"I didn't make such a threat."

Mr. Gille—"And didn't you make a threat that if you didn't get this privilege you would compete with the county?"

Mr. Weirick—"I didn't make such a threat."

Mr. Gille—"And didn't you make a threat that if you didn't get this privilege you would compete with the county?"

VOTE TO RAISE SUNKEN BATTLESHIP MAINE

Bodies Entombed in Hull Will Be Interred at Arlington Cemetery.

Washington, Mar. 24.—Twelve years ago Robert Cousins of Iowa made a patriotic appeal in the house for the raising of the battleship Maine, sunk by explosion in the harbor of Havana. The house now passed the Louisiana bill directing the war department to raise or destroy the wreck as a menace to navigation.

The bill came from the committee on naval affairs with a favorable report, introduced by President Taft and Secretary Meyer of the navy department. An appropriation of $100,000 was authorized for immediate use. As much more as necessary will be given. The bodies of the 33 sailors, entombed in the hull, are to be recovered and buried in the National cemetery at Arlington. The remains of the Maine are to be planted over the graves of the men who died when the Maine sank.

Speeches were made in the house in advocacy of the bill by Lord, Sulzer, Hobson, Tawney, Keffer, Nye and others. All were patriotic in tone. Lord quoting from the Canadian plan for raising the Maine made much of the sinking.

DR. COOK IS ILL, WRITES WIFE.

Letter from Chile Says Explorer Due in New York To-Day.

Bellingham, Wash., Mar. 24.—Dr. William M. Axtell, a close friend of Frederick A. Cook, received a letter from Mrs. Cook, dated Valparaiso, Chile, in which she says the explorer is returning to the United States broken in health, without funds and unable to continue his fight to establish his claim that he discovered the north pole. Mrs. Cook wrote that the doctor expected to reach New York to-day.

"Mrs. Cook tells me in her letter that Cook made considerable money out of his trip when he first arrived in New York, but that he spent it in defending himself against bitter attacks from his enemies before the Copenhagen decision was made public," said Dr. Axtell.

"Dr. Cook left New York later to escape controversy. Mrs. Cook says, and to go before the board of inquiry at Copenhagen as his own representative. Then his wife followed him, met him in England and found him a nervous wreck and very ill."

It is estimated that the telephone has added nine per cent. to the daily life told in New York city. The usual lie told in the list is "busy."

ISSUES A WARNING TO THE HOUSEWIFE

Dust Refuse and Sweepings Should All Be Burned.

"Dust, refuse and sweepings should always be burned," says a warning issued by the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association. The warning is particularly appropriate now, when housecleaning time approaches. "Dust is one of the greatest communicators of consumption and the greatest care should be exercised in its disposal. Now that furnaces and stoves are still in use it is a simple matter to drop sweepings, etc. into the fire, a few drops of oil being added if necessary."

The use of feather dusters and similar devices for sweeping and housecleaning is urged against, they tending to stir up dust. Damp cloths should be substituted because they are most sanitary and actually remove the dust instead of spreading it. Brushes should be used in lieu of brooms. It is better to moisten dust by means of damp paper, tea leaves or sweeping compounds.

Now that the vacuum cleaner is in wide use for housecleaning, it is pointed out that the refuse from the cleaners should always be burned. By disposing of it in this way, instead of throwing it into back yards or alleys, disease germs are not spread from house to house. This is especially important as concerning particularly consumption and pneumonia. It is not sufficient for one to get the dust out of his own home, but it should not be spread to neighbors' homes.

Co-operation in this for self-protection is urged.

In this season of high winds and dusty streets it is particularly urged that the public attitude for early street springing. Merchants protest against dust because they wish to protect their merchandise. When money or property loss is involved, it is easy to put through a vigorous campaign for reform. Human life should be reckoned as at least equally valuable and a light made for its protection.

Defends Corporation Tax Before the United States Supreme Court

Solicitor General Lloyd W. Bowers corporation tax when it comes up for at his desk in Washington preparing argument before the United States the briefs which are to defend the Supreme Court.

Washington, D. C.—Lloyd Bowers, formerly of Chicago and now solicitor general, has been working night and day during the past few weeks preparing the briefs which will have so much to do with determining the constitutionality of the corporation tax provision of the new tariff law. His defense centers around the following basic argument.

"A tax upon the use of franchises in business is no more a direct tax upon the franchisee than tax upon the use of property in business is a direct tax upon the property so used."

If Mr. Bowers can convince the United States Supreme court of this one fact his case is practically won and the thousands of corporate bodies over the United States who have filed their reports under protest will be forced to pay the tax levied against them. If it can be proven by the attorneys representing these corporations that the franchise tax is a direct tax it will undoubtedly be held unconstitutional and be thrown out. This case will come out before the United States supreme court probably next Thursday and the decision to be rendered will be one of the most far-reaching in recent supreme court annals.

1910 Cadillac "Thirty"

THIS advertisement is to tell you what we know about the Cadillac "Thirty" and what 10,000 owners know about it.

Of course, when you purchase an automobile, the main objects you have in view are to get a good, dependable, high-grade car as good as the best and to pay the least possible price necessary to accomplish this end.

The Cadillac "THIRTY" has conclusively proven that it has no superior at any price. The Cadillac "THIRTY" makes it absolutely unnecessary for you to take any chances in buying an unknown quantity or paying a higher price for a high grade automobile. And 10,000 people in the United States have taken advantage of the opportunity to own a high-class car for one-half the price commonly paid for cars not its equal.

FOR YOU TO MAKE FAIR COMPARISONS ALONG THESE LINES, WE WILL TELL YOU WHAT CONSTITUTES A HIGH-CLASS AUTOMOBILE:

The best and highest priced material that money can buy; advanced and correct mechanical design; and these principles in the hands of an honorable manufacturer who has both the ability and the honest desire to build a high-grade car is what you get in a Cadillac "THIRTY" at a moderate price.

Again, standardization of parts is a positive assurance of every one getting a good car when buying a Cadillac; all parts are absolutely alike to 1 1000th of an inch; no making over of parts when assembling cars. Thus, every Cadillac when it is produced is a facsimile of every other Cadillac "THIRTY."

Examine this Cadillac "THIRTY" point for point and you will find in every feature that it is equal in construction, design and workmanship to any high-priced car on the market. Bear in mind, design means more than looks. Correct mechanical design is more important in the production of a high-class automobile than is generally understood. A car may be made of the best material and finest workmanship, but if poorly mechanically designed it is a FAILURE. Or should it be correctly mechanically designed and poor workmanship and material used in its construction, again it would be a FAILURE; but the Cadillac "THIRTY" represents all of the essential points; correct mechanical design, high-class workmanship, and the very best material available. There is nothing more than can possibly enter into the construction of any automobile.

These principles of construction, once applied, admit of no variation—thus every Cadillac owner says the same thing; that the Cadillac is absolutely dependable, never causes any trouble and a constant source of pleasant surprise.

source for periods of war or peril to the national credit—is attractive in theory, but would hardly be verified in practice. The moment the income tax amendment was ratified by three-fourths of the states, bills applying such tax in a manner to cast the whole burden upon the northeast, by fixing a high limit of exemption from the tax, would flutter into the bill-box of the house of representatives.

"Thick as autumn leaves in Valombrosa."

"The adoption of the income tax amendment is something more than a trifling modification of the old constitution—it is a revolution in its scope and spirit. Great changes in government can be brought about with minor changes, or none, in the terms of the fundamental law. Augustus, when he solidified his power at Rome, simply arrogated to the head of the senate the power to initiate legislation. A joint resolution of the two houses of congress, limiting new legislation to that recommended by the heads of departments, would convert our government, without even a constitutional amendment, into a despotism."

This is the view that Wall street takes of the new law and its provisions and, one which the country at large is considering in detail. The south is really the keynote to the situation, and the north should recognize their rights in this matter just the same as they should in the past and west.

WET OR DRY.

Throughout the whole country the wave of absolute prohibition is sweeping. Cities both large and small are to vote on this question this spring and Janesville will also have the opportunity of deciding whether the saloons are to go or are to remain.

The petition, signed by nearly four hundred citizens, calling for this question being voted on April 5th, has been filed with the city clerk. Prohibition has reached beyond the question of theory, and become a business proposition. Cities that have been overrun with saloons have abolished them and have prospered, so that the old cry that the saloons make the town a proven false. It is not probable that Janesville will vote to abolish the liquor shops but it is an opening wedge in the statewide campaign to have the vote taken here this spring. The whole trouble comes from their absolute indifference to the state and municipal laws as regards closing and management of their places of business. The brewers have realized it for some years past but they seem unable to eradicate the men from the business that seek the public dollar in defiance of the laws—on Sundays, after closing hours, and by selling to minors. Even if Janesville decides to retain the saloons the question will not end there and the campaign for the passage of a county option law will be one of the issues of the coming state campaign with a fair chance of a successful issue. There are liquor men in Janesville that observe the law but there are those who ignore it. Unfortunately the class is judged by those who run the lawless places and consequently the whole liquor element must suffer for the sins of the few.

THE KING'S ENGLISH.

"A" writer in the London Nation writes that in the days of Queen Victoria it was a common reproach among cultivated circles to say that some one could not speak "Queen's English." This was the "standard of correctness." Proceeding, he takes up the phrase "King's English," and remarks that it would evidently signify the finest, the most cultivated, the most correct form of our language. Yet Mr. Balfour, he says, has found a king's speech almost too much for him. Mr. Balfour spoke of a recent address as an "amazing piece of English." He declared that "there is not in the whole speech one single sentence that is free from error."

For this his majesty is not held responsible; the fault is laid against his ministers. Mr. Balfour believed that "each of the ministers had a copy of the speech to read, to examine and to observe upon." The conclusion is reached that "in the multitude of counselors there may be wisdom, but there is never style." The obscurity and bad grammar of the King's speech are doubtless due to its having been framed by nine men instead of one.

The English tongue should be carefully preserved, for it is rapidly becoming a world language. More than five times as many people use it now as did a century ago. It has spread at a greater rate than any of the other modern languages. Travelers are making themselves understood with less difficulty in foreign capitals in their use of English. Numerous efforts have been made to provide a universal language, but the opinion is expressed that if the same amount of energy and enterprise that have been displayed in creating and pushing Volapuk and Esperanto had been used to extend the English language it would have become more nearly universal than either of them can ever be.

While the autos have been attended to for the time being, why not get after the street cars and stop their excessive speed, as they dash for the barn or somewhere to get out of sight, along the streets, particularly on South Main? The petition of the new owners of the line to have it thrown into the receiver's hands depleted the cars as a menace to public life and limb and still they run, rock, sway and appear to be ready to leave the tracks any minute as they make their mad dashes down the streets as though ashamed to be seen. Some one will be killed and then perhaps the authorities will awaken to the situation.

This talk of the state-wide call for consideration of the question of who shall be candidates for the coming election on the part of men who favored a primary law, is amusing. The law was all right as long as it worked in their favor, and all wrong when it worked against them. What should be done is to elect a legislature, the first duty of its members being to repeal the law and then go back to the old convention system.

While some may remember, it is well to keep in mind that April 5th is election day and that city officers are to be elected, including a city attorney. As the voters on Tuesday placed in nomination two men, a republican, Harry L. Maxfield, and a democrat, Fred Burpee, Mr. Maxfield's majority was an endorsement of his past work as a city official and it is to be expected that republicans will vote for him at election.

Chief of Police Appleby has issued a word of warning to the motorists relative to their running cars through the city, up the hills and on crowded thoroughfares, beyond the speed limit set by the law. It is a good move, but what would be better would be to arrest a few of the violators and take them into court. Nothing hits a man so quick as a fine on his bank account and a good, stiff fine would work wonders.

If some of the editors of the kind are not a little more careful regarding what they write and print, President Taft may be moved to stop his paper some of these days. He said as much to the newspaper men of Chicago, in which city abide some of the president's severest newspaper critics.

Uncle Walt
THE POET PHILOSOPHER
By WALT MASON.
(Copyright, 1909, by George M. & Lewis Adams.)

We're questioning the distant stars, to lay their secrets bare; do humans belong here on Mars? Is Saturn round or square? We dig into the mystery of all the universe, not knowing if results will be a blessing or a curse. When I was but a little lad, as beautiful as a bird, when all the world was young and glad, I played about the yard and saw the birds in joyous flight, the gorgeous flowers in bloom; then all the days were passing bright, and night gave naught of gloom. One day, while resting 'neath a tree, to lodge the morning heat, a wondrous bird came down by me, upon the garden seat. I was not satisfied to gaze upon its wings of gauze; I felt that I its form must seize, and hold it in my paws. I was not satisfied to view its beauties from afar; I was like grown up people who must dig into a star. And so I seized it—dead of shame! And there was none to check! And then a streak of lightning came, and hit me in the neck. They put me in my little bed, and doped and poulticed me; "that little bird," my grandma said; "was but a humble bee."

TEA BALL HUNG IN POT

Lowered into Water to Make Drink and Then Pulled Up Again.

A tea or coffee pot with a tea ball inside has been designed by two Connecticut men. The advantage of this device is that the tea or coffee used in the pot without having any grounds in it. A hole is bored through the knob of the pot, and a chain running through this hole is attached to the tea ball. When not in use the ball can be drawn up into the pot, but to make the tea or coffee it is drawn down into the water in the pot and sent there until the water has boiled long enough. Penetrating the perforations in the ball, the water becomes as fully flavored as if the tea or coffee was lying loosely in it, but there is no danger of the liquid getting "grounds," as the grounds are safe in the ball. Any person who has a tea ball could make this attachment to their own tea or coffee pot by simply boring a hole in the top of the latter.

FORTUNE FAVORED JOSEPH F. DONAHOE

Chosen by Lot to Receive the Democratic Nomination for Alderman in the Fifth Ward.
Joseph F. Donahoe will be the democratic candidate for alderman in the fifth ward at the coming election. Chosen in the person of Miss Elsie Fathers, was called in this morning to decide, after 306 voters of the fifth ward had divided their votes equally between Donahoe and his opponent, James J. Reed.

In the presence of the board of canvassers, consisting of the city clerk, Roy Cummings, J. J. Cunningham, chairman of the democratic city committee, and H. L. McNamara, chairman of the republican committee, Miss Fathers selected the slip of paper bearing Mr. Donahoe's name from the hat containing slips bearing the names of both candidates.

According to a statement made by Mr. Reed this morning, he will abide by the decision and not contest the election. This will settle a matter that has been worrying the voters ever since the tie for the aldermanic nomination was announced after the primary.

Many voters thought that chance should not be allowed to break the tie and advocated a recount of the ballots by the board of canvassers.

Upon more careful investigation yesterday afternoon it was found that the primary law permits neither the board of canvassers nor the common council to make a recount of the ballots of any precinct on any pretext, whatever. The law declares that the ballots must be sealed and returned to the county clerk and that sixty days after date, in event there is no contest, the clerk, in the presence of certain other officials, shall burn them without breaking the seals. Knowing this, the county clerk refused to deliver the fifth ward ballots to the canvassers when they were called for yesterday afternoon and Judge Grimm could not yield to entreaties over the telephone that he should issue an order on the clerk to deliver the same.

There will be no special session of the common council because the only returns made to that body, and to the board of canvassers as well, are the poll books and inspectors' statements. After a regular election the common council holds a special meeting and goes through a certain formality of ratifying the result, but no such procedure, it seems, is necessary in the case of a primary election.

But it was pretty well established last evening that in event of a tie vote it is the duty of the board of canvassers to draw lots and make a declaration as to the winner. The candidates have no option in the matter, as was supposed yesterday. But the loser, if dissatisfied, may file a protest and start proceedings for a recount, in which event, ballots are counted again and the case decided in open court.

THE CAUCUS IS HARMONIOUS

REPUBLICANS MEET AND NAME SIX MEMBERS ON RULES COMMITTEE.

ONLY ONE BALLOT TAKEN

"Insurgents," with exception of Gardner, (Mass.), Attend and Make Nominees on Ratification by House.

Washington, Mar. 24.—Six regulars were chosen at the Republican caucus to represent the majority party on the committee on rules which is to succeed the committee on the resolution that took place in the house of representatives last week. Those selected are:

Walter I. Smith of Iowa, John Dalzell of Pennsylvania, George P. Lawrence of Massachusetts, J. Sloan Fassett of New York, Sylvester C. Smith of California, Henry S. Runtell of Illinois.

"Insurgents" Were Present. All the "insurgents" with the exception of Gardner of Massachusetts were present and voted at the caucus and such of them as Morris and Murdoch declared they were satisfied with the result.

When the caucus was called to order Representative Tawney took the floor and made a most impassioned speech for harmony. A similar speech was made by Representative Payne of New York.

On conclusion of the speeches the following names were placed on nomination:

Longworth, Gaines, Gardiner, Fassett, Smith (Iowa), Runtell, Dalzell, Smith (California), Kahn, Lawrence, Landon, Miller, Stevens, Cooper, Dobby, Murdoch, Davidson and Martin. Needham of Colorado, Olmstead of Pennsylvania, Parsons of New York and Norris of Nebraska were also nominated, but they promptly declined.

Balloting Was Secret.

It was decided on motion of Representative Hubbard, and seconded by Payne of New York, that the ballot should be secret.

Those nominated by the insurgents were Gardner, Cooper, Murdoch, Davidson, Martin and Norris.

The following was the first vote announced: Smith (Iowa), 168; Dalzell (Pennsylvania), 114; Lawrence (Massachusetts), 126; Fassett (New York), 113; Smith (California), 92; Runtell (Illinois), 85; Kahn (California), 66; Longworth (Ohio), 53.

The first four were declared elected. In the second ballot the important votes were: Smith of California, 139; Runtell of Illinois, 108; Longworth of Ohio, 60, the first two being declared elected.

House Must Ratify Nomination.

The caucus nominees will have to be ratified by the house in which the election was held.

Dalzell will probably be elected chairman of the committee. Smith of Iowa, who received the largest vote of the 180 Republicans in caucus—156 votes—declared for Dalzell for chairman.

The insurgents did not show up strong in the voting. Gardner of Massachusetts, who was sick and absent, got 33 votes, the highest number. Norris got 5; Cooper, 4; Davidson, 5; Murdoch, 6; Fish, 7; and Davidson, 5.

Speaker Cannon Was Present.

Speaker Cannon was present during the caucus, but took no active part in the proceedings.

Mr. Longworth was nominated by two insurgents, Taylor of Ohio and Hackett of Iowa. His largest vote, coming on the second ballot, was 69, or just 15 more votes than was cast by the insurgents on the adoption of the Norris resolution.

The insurgents have promised to support the caucus nominees in balloting in the house, and by their votes in the caucus pledged themselves to carry out that promise.

Prior to the assembling of the caucus the insurgents held a meeting at which they decided to vote a protest against the selection of Messrs. Dalzell and Fassett. But they stopped there, and Dalzell and Fassett had no difficulty in winning.

The Democrats make their selections Thursday night and the election will probably be held next Monday or Tuesday.

JURYMAN MAKES STRANGE PLEA.

Desires Release from Duties Because of Depressive Memories.

Watkins, Ill., Mar. 24.—On a remarkable plea, one of the ten jurors chosen in the trial of Dr. William R. Miller, Mrs. Lucy Sawyer and John C. Grunden, charged with the murder of Dr. John H. Sawyer, has appeared to the court to release him from service.

The juror says that when examined as a witness he believed he had placed aside all recollection of a harrowing personal experience, but that since sitting in the jury box for several days he has become oppressed with memories of the time when he pursued and tried to wreak vengeance on a man who invaded his home. The juror's face was white and his hands trembled as he tried to tell Judge Elbel, who will hear the whole story only on consent of opposing counsel.

SEEKS TO EXTRADITE PACKERS.

New Jersey. Prosecutor Proceeds Against Swift and Morris.

Trenton, N. J., Mar. 24.—Prosecutor Garven of Hudson county made application to Gov. Fort for the extradition of Louis F. Swift of Swift & Co. and Edward Morris of Morris & Co., who are under indictment in Hudson county on the charge of conspiracy in connection with the charge that the cold storage houses of these companies are made use of for the purpose of raising the price of meat. Gov. Fort took no action, and in keeping with his promise made last week to Samuel Untermyer, counsel for the packing companies, he will give a hearing before the extraditions are allowed.

The supreme court, after hearing argument, allowed the writ of certiorari as applied for by counsel for the packing companies in connection with the proceedings to have the western meat concerns bring their books into New Jersey for inspection by the Hudson county grand jury.

KILLS TWO, FIGHTS TO DEATH.

Passenger Blays Porter and Conductor—Is Shot by Police.

Wilmington, Del., Mar. 24.—A tall southerner, after some words with a porter on the Royal Blue Limited train on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, shot and killed Samuel Williams, a negro porter, as the train was running nearly a mile a minute. When O. B. Wellman, the conductor of the train, appeared, the southerner turned his automatic pistol upon him, too. The conductor fell shot through the left side near the heart, as the porter had been. The train ran to Wilmington and a battle between the southerner and the police followed. After two men had been wounded the police killed the southerner who, from papers on his body, is believed to have been J. H. Bethen of Illinois, S. C.

Thirteen passengers, besides Bethen, were in the second car of the limited. They say Bethen boarded the train at Baltimore, and appeared to have been drinking.

TO STUDY MEANS OF FORTIFYING THE PANAMA CANAL.

To finally decide upon cities for the fortifications at the Atlantic and the Pacific terminals of the Panama canal and among the route of the canal, which will cost approximately $5,000,000, a part of the fortifications board appointed by President Taft have just departed on board the Ancon of the Panama Steamship line. In the party were Brig. Gen. William Crozier, chief of ordnance; Brig. Gen. Arthur Murray, chief of artillery and Brig. Gen. William L. Marshall, chief of engineers. Capt. S. D. Enfield of the artillery corps accompanied the officers, and G. H. Powell went as clerk of the board.

These officers have been preceded by Brig. Gen. William F. Wetherington, assistant chief of staff, and Maj. William G. Hann, in command at Fort Wadsworth, and by Commanders J. J. Knapp and W. J. Maxwell, the naval members of the board. The officers will make the round trip on board the Ancon, and expect to stay on the isthmus about eight or ten days.

There are several women in the party including the wives of General Murray and General Marshall, Capt. Enfield and Mr. Powell, with John Enfield and Mr. Powell, with General Crozier's wife, a Philadelphia and her son and daughter. Others are Miss Florence Baker and Miss Mary Hobbs.

General Marshall said that while all the plans for the proposed fortifications had been worked out in the army offices in Washington on paper, it was necessary for the board to see the locations with their own eyes.

"There are no serious obstacles to be overcome," said General Marshall, "and all of the work can be easily completed. I should say that after Congress makes the money available for the work it can be done within two years."

"I am one who believe that no foreign fleet would ever get near enough to the canal to be hit by one of our big guns. You see I have considerable faith in our navy. If a foreign fleet should come it would find a warm welcome either on the Atlantic or the Pacific side, and the islands in between."

FAIRBANKS IS WELCOMED HOME.

Addressers and Friends Throughout Indiana Greet Former Vice-President.

Indianapolis, Ind., Mar. 24.—All Indiana joined today in welcoming home former Vice President Charles W. Fairbanks and Mrs. Fairbanks. The distinguished couple arrived in the afternoon from their "round-the-world" trip, and were greeted by the cheers of their friends and admirers from all parts of the state. All the mayors of Indiana cities had been asked to send representatives, and most of them had complied. The school children of this city also participated in the exercises. Only two speeches were made, the addresses of welcome by Gov. Thomas H. Marshall, and the response by Mr. Fairbanks.

Mountain of Alum.

One of the recently discovered natural curiosities of China is an "alum mountain" 1,500 feet in height and about ten miles in circumference at the base. The Chinese quarry the alum, or masses containing alum, in large blocks, which are heated in ovens made for the purpose, and afterward dissolved in boiling water. The alum then crystallizes in layers about half a foot in thickness and is cut up into ten pound pieces. Its principal use is in the purification of water.

"MEN HIGH UP" ARE HIT, AND WEAKEN

INDICTMENT OF PROMINENT PITTSBURG MEN IS EXPECTED.

AIMS AT GIVERS OF BRIBES

Wasson, Convicted Taker of Bribes, Makes Full Confession, as Does William Brand and Hugh Ferguson, Known as "Big Trio."

Pittsburg, Pa., Mar. 24.—The continued confession of Pittsburgh councilmen, past and present, together with the rumors that the grand jury will hand down another batch of indictments today or tomorrow, increases the terror among a certain class in this city.

William Brand, president of a previous common council, who is under 3 1/2 years' sentence for grafting, and Attorney Hugh Ferguson, formerly a councilman and one of the leading attorneys of Pennsylvania, broke down and, going before the district attorney, made sworn statements of what they knew about grafting. Councilman Joseph Wasson, who completed the big trio in council, was brought from Riverside penitentiary, and he also made a full confession to the district attorney.

Men Higher Up to Be Indicted.
It is admitted in the district attorney's office that the confessions of these three lay bare the source of the money which went into the pockets of Pittsburgh councilmen in the last few years. The names of the men higher up will probably be made public today through indictment.

The grand jury adjourned without making public any of the bills which they may have found. There is a world of uneasiness and business in Pittsburgh has fallen off 35 per cent. in the last four days owing to the growth of the graft scandal.

Twenty-Eight Have Confessed.
Nine more councilmen came into court and admitted that they, too, had received money for their votes in council. This makes a total of 28 to date who have confessed to having been bribed.

President Taft is to be appealed to in order that Councilman John Klein may not be confined in Riverside penitentiary at all, or, if he is sent there, that he be released in a very few days. That this promise and $25,000 cash in hand, paid by the Voters' League of Pittsburgh, was the price exacted by the convicted councilman before he would confess caused a great sensation. It also came out that Klein had demanded of others the sum of $100,000 as the price of his silence, that this money he paid his wife in cash that she might invest it while he was in prison and be prepared to take him far from Pittsburgh when he was released after his 3 1/2 years' term.

Several of those whom Klein had planned into trouble within the last few days have announced that they can prove that he put the proposition of their paying up to them point blank.

Klein Given Beatings.

Klein is alleged to have received some very severe body beatings from those whom he approached with his propositions on finance. Dr. W. H. Weber, who has since been dragged into the limelight by Klein and who has confessed, admits that Klein tried to get money from him and that he threw him out of his office.

The president of one of the biggest national banks in Pittsburgh is alleged to have knocked Klein down with a chair and then chased him into the street when Klein tried to talk finance with him.

Klein is a nervous wreck. He has received three more letters threatening him with bodily harm if he was ever caught on the streets of Pittsburgh.

VIOLET PONGEE.

For Southern wear and early summer days at home, violet pongee makes a delightful gown, and the design suggested in accompanying sketch is charming for such fabric. It is a one-piece frock, with inverted plait-back and a deep flounce at knee depth in front. The bodice in back is in pointed jacket effect, and the front is prettily trimmed with narrow velvet ribbon and buttons. Aborescence is used for the round collar and cuffs, and the chemise and stock are all in one piece. A jabot of violet chiffon and a velvet bow trim down the front.

The Ticklemouse
—and his Sleepyland Adventures
By Roy Rutherford Bailey with Davy and Dorfy

Spotting Mr. Leopard

DAVY bounced out of bed last night at the first soft touch of the tickling tip of Mr. Ticklemouse's tail. He was in such a hurry to get the Noah's Ark animals repainted.

Dorfy was too sleepy to hurry, but when she did rub her eyes and sit up in bed, she saw a funny little game going on by the glow of the wee night lamp. Davy stood ready at the gas jet, while the Mouse skated back and forth across the soft Persian rug. Suddenly the Mouse squeaked, "Turn it on!" and held one skinny knuckle to the jet. The gas burst into flame.

"It's electricity," explained Davy, proudly. "Cap'n Ticklemouse says he's going to take us for another Ark cruise, with electric power, so we can't get shipwrecked."

Dorfy watched the Ark grow bigger. "But oughtn't we to finish painting the poor animals first?"

"The Ticklemouse laughed and showed her the wet wolves and giraffes stuck fast to the cabin floor. "Davy was right," he told her, "you used the wrong kind of paint—of course they'd stick together!"

They helped him launch the Ark, now so big as to be very heavy lifting. And as it whirled through the night and landed—ker-splash!—in the sea, the twins spied Shen, Hun and Japheth taking turns skating around on the rug, which the Mouse had spread out on deck. At each turn across they reached out a lamelke to a shiny brass knob, and a bright, crackling spark made the twins jump.

"My new three-man-power motor," remarked the Mouse with some pride. The Ark was plowing along at a great speed. The night was calm and no water came aboard. The animals were quiet—all except the leopard and the zebra, who were too uneasy without their spots and stripes to keep still long.

They docked at a long, sticky pier and drove the animals ashore. Scrambling down the gangplank, Dorfy stum-drive the animals up to the door of the oddly painted house. The cat tribe alone was muzzled, but the zebra began to bark.

The Boss Painter seemed to be expecting them. He threw open his door, in they trooped, animals, crew and all. He had long, snowy whiskers and the nicest, kindest eyes. He smiled and scratched his head; and beneath the little red skullcap Davy saw he was as bald as an Easter egg. He nodded brightly at the Mouse, threw a kiss to the twins, and finished putting the hold and black bands on a patient bumblebee.

"Found another set that needed fresh paint, eh?" and he set the bee aside to dry. "All right, Ticklemouse—which comes first?"

"Cats first," said the Mouse, somewhat pale around the ears; he dodged behind the easel while Shen and Hun blindfolded the leopard. The Boss Painter mixed up some fresh colors in a row of bluebell cups—using morning dew instead of oils—winked at Dorfy, and began spotting the leopard.

The big cat didn't like the cool paint, and fought like fury. He and the zebra gave the crew a bad half-hour, in which Dorfy just missed getting kicked by the zebra, and poor little Davy got a splinter in his hand—a vicious sidelong snip from the leopard's long wooden teeth. The Boss Painter tied up the hand.

"What's the bill, brother?" asked the Mouse, when the last stroke of the brush left the animals shining like new. "A dozen kisses from each twin," answered the Boss Painter, promptly. "If you could always pay me in that coin, 'would be worth more to me than all the money in Niceland!"

He gathered them both in his great, warm arms and kissed them tenderly. He seemed more like Santa Claus than anyone Davy and Dorfy had ever seen.

"But what would you have done, Captain Ticklemouse," asked Davy sleepily, as the Mouse tucked them into bed at last, "what if the leopard had kept right on scratching and biting? Would you have left him all drab like our old tonic?"

"Nixie," chuckled the Ticklemouse. "Not in a thousand years. Mrs. Noah was behind the screen heating a persimmon in the grate; and if old Mr. Leopard hadn't come to town when he did, he'd have had a lively lesson in burnt-wood work. She had everything all nice and ready to sizzle his pesky hide full of brand-new spots with the Boss Painter's red-hot poker!"

STOLE CANNED GOODS AND CLOTHING AT THE SALE

Thieves Robbed the Salvation Army Humbug Sale of Goods Last Evening.

Each week on Wednesday the Salvation Army has what it calls a rummage sale, at which time clothing, and odds and ends, often food stuffs are sold at a nominal figure to those who wish them or given away to those who can not buy. Last evening someone visited the headquarters and stole a coat and vest, a hat and also several cans of corn. The thieves are known but Captain Fleming does not know just what steps he will take to punish them.

Salt Purification.

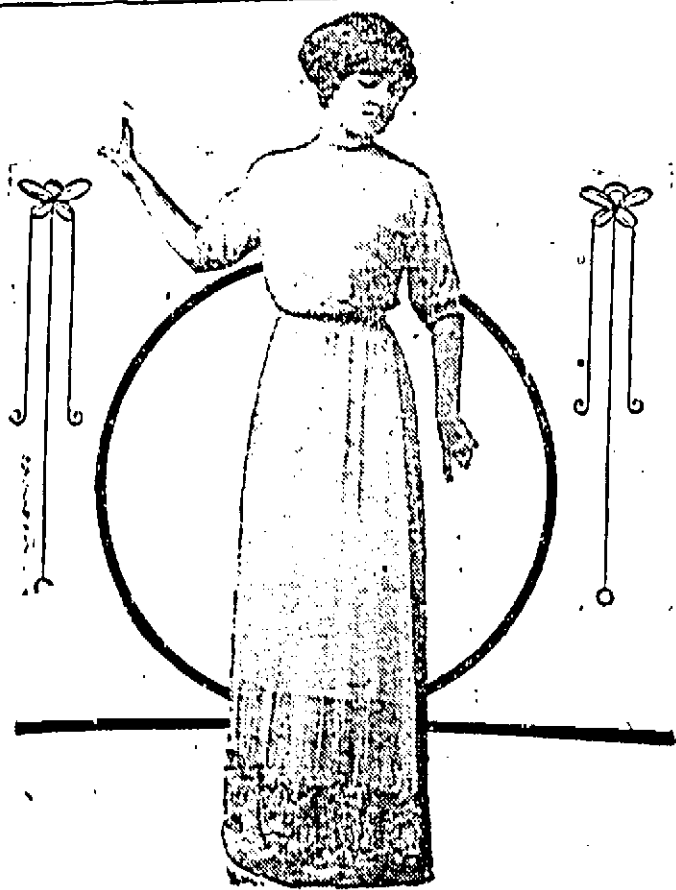

Salt is purified by melting in the new and rapid English process. The crude rock salt is fed automatically to a table contained in a large furnace, is then fused and runs into troughs, from which it is drawn at one side of the furnace into large cauldrons. Air is forced into the molten mass and lime is added. The impurities sink to the bottom, and the upper portion is ground and screened while the lower part is used for chemical manufacture.

Lay Low.
"Let us get out in the sunshine," says a Georgia poet, "but be careful to keep far from the farmers who would waylay and plow us. I believe in sticking to the soil in literature, but not in down-right reality—at the plowhandles, for instance, and as the man with the hoe in his hand. There is no poetry in the hungry baying of a Georgia hound, or the 'sow-sow' of the plowman!"—Atlanta Constitution.

Australian Yate Tree.

The yate tree of western Australia, growing to a height of 100 feet, a diameter of 2 1/2 to three feet, yields the strongest timber known. Late tests showed an average tensile strength of 24,000 pounds to the square inch, equal to that of cast-iron, and some specimens resisted 17 1/2 tons to the square inch, equal to the tensile strength of wrought-iron.

Dinner Dress or Peasant Type.

An idealization of the peasant dress is seen in this charmingly simple evening gown of rose marquisette, which has a narrow straight skirt gathered into the waist band and bordered with a broad band of rose satin embroidered with silver thread. The seamless, shouldered bodice has small elbow sleeves bordered to match the skirt.

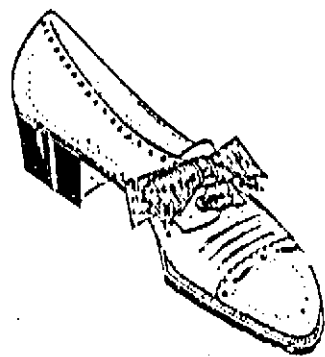

and like the skirt is mounted upon black Canada lace banded white chiffon over a satin slip. The collar, which is arranged over a Callot cap at the back, is dressed in swirl effect, the long tresses wound about the crown of the head, pressing a curled fringe against the face.

STYLE means a lot to a woman. Now and then a woman may sniff, but if studied one can see a failing in a style direction.

The effect of the most beautiful gown may be entirely spoiled if the base—the corset—is not right. The waist of the dress may not touch the figure at the exact point, the hips not be properly shaped and the gown may wrinkle, be too tight or too loose.

CORSETTING will do this oftentimes if the corset shape is not right, or it may result from careless adjusting or wrong lacing. A small matter like the lacing may throw the entire corset out of figure alignment and the wearer will be wretchedly uncomfortable.

That is what we are here for—for correcting corset mistakes. It is our business to study figures, all kinds of figures, large and small, tall and short, even figures with imperfections, slight deformities, and these are well corsetted through our specialized study of the subject.

We have recently added a large line of Warner Bros. Rust Proof Corsets and their celebrated Red Fern Corsets. We are showing those at $1 to $6 and are prepared to take special orders for anything they make.

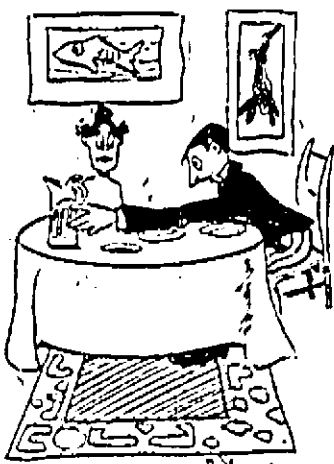

We have an expert corsetiere in charge of our corset department who will be pleased to give you any information desired.

In addition to the above we are exclusive agents for the celebrated Bon Ton and Royal Worcester corsets. We carry an immense line.

Also W. B. American Lady and La Greque, and the Ferris Waists for women, misses and children.

The Big Store's showing of corsets is certainly a very complete one. You may want one to wear with your new Easter Costume.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

DO YOU want to avoid that tired feeling that's due long about this time? Do you want to feel as if you could house-clean the world, instead of shrinking before the thought of six or eight or ten rooms to clean? Do you want to feel as if you wished the working day wouldn't end so soon, instead of watching the clock all the afternoon?

If you do, I can give you a springtime recipe that's better than sulphur and molasses, and much nicer to take.

And this is the way my prescription reads: Fresh air.—Take twenty lungfuls of an open door or window every hour or so. Also take several thousand lungfuls at least once, and preferably two or three times a day, on a walk.

Professor Sargent, the physical director of the greatest university in the country, has recently made the statement that women are in a fair way to overcome men in the attainment of perfect physical development.

And the chief thing to which the professor ascribes this state of affairs is the fact that women are out in the fresh air much more than they used to be.

"The other day mother and I took one of her friends to drive, and when we brought her back, as she climbed out of the carriage, she said: 'You don't know how I have enjoyed this. Why, except to stand on my back steps and shake my table cloth, this is the first time I've been outside my door for three weeks now.'"

I wish there could be a law making it a legal offense for any woman, unless she is confined to the house by illness, to stay indoors for a whole week.

Any home-keeping woman ought to be out in the air at least an hour, morning and afternoon.

"Such a bother to get all dressed twice," I know some women are answering.

Well, then, why not bundle up and take your work or your morning paper out on the sunny spot on the back porch in the morning, and then take a walk in the afternoon?

And then another thing: How much are you inviting out-of-doors Indians?

I know one very healthy woman who goes about her housework the year round with windows thing wide open.

In the winter time, of course, that would be pretty hard treatment, but I don't think it would be hard plan to put her practice just now.

If you are afraid of so much air, at least try the milder plan of opening the window and airing out every hour or two.

And suppose, also, you be sure to take those occasional lungfuls of fresh air at the open window or door.

Ask your children to teach you the breathing exercises they do at school and administer them to yourself occasionally.

Do you think all this bother too big a price to pay for feeling better? Then listen to the other boon the professor promises, and I'm sure you'll be won over.

"Women," says the professor, "have begun to realize that the surest way to obtain both health AND GOOD LOOKS is through air."

Fads and Fashions

New York, March 21.—The style of skirts which will be worn during the spring and probably the early summer months differs but little from the prevailing style, which has been in vogue for some time. The leading skirt is styled and usually has a real or simulated tulle and the popular variations of the undressed skirt include those with plain front, and side panels attached to a wide side-plaited back, with all round side or box plait mounted on a knee-deep tulle and with side plait clusters between narrow gored fronts and backs.

Only with the very long polonaise is the plaited gored or very short circular skirt to be generally worn, while the straight cut type, gathered into the belt at sides and back, is chiefly employed for peasant frocks of wash material, the English moulton or a very sheer silk fabric.

Although it has many competitors for favor, the linen dress will be extensively worn throughout the summer and early autumn. Nothing quite equals it for utility and, although the material is easily crumpled, it may readily be pressed and it will withstand a great amount of hard wear. During this month and next many two and three piece suits of heavy linen will be made up by fashionable tailors, as invariably there is a tremendous demand for them the moment that the first warm wave sweeps over the town.

The manufacturer of linen suits, noted for his conservatism, is making up a model which is certain to appeal to the woman who prefers to do her shopping during the morning hours and to the business woman whose duties keep her away from home during the great part of the day. This suit has the generally becoming thirty-six-inch mannish box coat and a fitting, widely side-plaited skirt, fitting smoothly over the hips and occupying the ground by about three inches and is extremely modish when developed in fulsome brown, Venetian blue or faded green.

Another practical type of the tailored wash suit is seen in the crash sweaters which show dark blue, brown or green mixed with white or pale gray and made up into a smart-looking skirt having rather narrow front and side gored attached by buttons to a widely plaited back. The coat of the semi-dressed order has sectional every description at present. There are large, small and medium-sized hats, hats of all periods materials and colors. The broad brimmed hat usually comes to the fore with the approach of the warm season and it is not surprising, therefore, that the displays contain many of these large hats. These large models are usually becoming to women, as they lend a picturesque background to the face. Many of these large hats are of flowers in wreaths, encircled the low crowns. Heavy lace, decorated with pearls is used a great deal for trimmings, but equally popular seem to be flowers, tulips, lilies, velvet and ribbon, together with feathers of every description.

The draped turban made entirely from tulle appears in some very attractive forms and either in one color or in several shades of one color. Often the tulle is used in soft, full folds interwoven and one shade may veil another. A handsome ornament of some sort, usually holding a soaring albatross or plume, is often the only trimming for one of these turban hats. There are also flower turbans and turbans with helms of straw and entire crowns of flowers. The vulgar and unbecoming feathered bows are still in evidence, but are affected almost exclusively by women of a certain class delighting in loud and bizarre effects. No woman of taste and refinement will be guilty of wearing one of those vulgar attractions.

Slippers to be worn during the short but rainy season immediately following Easter, differ in several respects from those worn during the past winter. Those worn during the past winter, the new slippers are less pointed, the vamp somewhat shorter and the heels less extreme in height. The decorations are much simpler and the buckles are not set upon the vamp, but above it and over the elaborately embroidered silk stockings.

FLORENCE FAIRBANKS.

NEW FRIENDS AND OLD.

By MARY RUSSELL.

Songs may be sung to the friends youth—the old friends and the new friends have a value peculiarly their own.

A circle of full moon grows stagnant. Each plumb the depths of the other's thoughts without effort.

No long has the exchange of thought gone on that each can reckon with certainty on the attitude of the other. The new friend comes in like a breeze over rippling waters or through fragrant places.

A feeling of vigor enters the circle and the brains are stirred to put forth their best efforts.

No new friend can take the place of the old one, but can create a place for himself if we will but open our hearts. Old friends may be lost, but give the new friend time and he too will be an old friend.

It is hard to remember, when we are in the circle of harmony created by time and long acquaintance, that the new friend in the town may have left just such a charming bond of intimacy. That he, or she, may be lonely and need the friendly hand.

We are rather given to thinking of charity as the "giving of gifts," and perhaps it is. Not in one sense, but in the sense of giving of the gift of ourselves.

We are almost all of us sufficiently good judges of human nature to soon decide whether the new friend is one who will enjoy the friends we prize.

We are not likely to make the mistake of trying to mix incongruous characters. But we are all given to the mistake of hasty judgment and lack of thought.

It has been said that the warm-hearted western people think every woman a lady—with all the form and manner—until she proves herself the opposite, and that the east believes no woman is a lady till she proves that she is.

The west may make mistakes, and probably does, but she does not make the mistake of making some lovely woman unhappy and homeless through dwelling on her broad prairies.

A woman who has always had a close and friendly circle about her grows why in an unfriendly atmosphere and will not make any effort to force her way. All must come to her or she will not have it. Sometimes, perhaps, she is too hard to understand and that shows a lack of wisdom on her part, but the unfriendly attitude of the women who are established in social circles has much to do with it.

Don't be so afraid of the dignity of your little position. Remember "the who has found a new star in the sky is not so fortunate as he who finds a new deep-hearted friend."

What A Woman Will Not Do

There is nothing a woman will not do to regain her lost beauty. She ought to be as busy as a bee in preserving her good looks. The herb drink called Lank's Pure Medicine or Lank's Cream is the most effective medicine for a beautiful skin, and will do more than anything else to restore the roses to faded cheeks. SUGGESTIONS MADE TO THE GARDENERS

As the warm weather begins thoughts of many turn to their flower and vegetable gardenings. The National Council of Horticulture sends out the following suggestions which will be read with interest by many who plan for an outdoor plot this coming summer.

If seeds for the flower and vegetable gardens are not already in the hot beds, or in boxes or pots placed near a sunny window, then the amateur gardener who wants to keep ahead of his neighbor when warm weather comes would better prepare his hot bed or boxes at once.

The simplest method of raising plants to be set out after all danger of frost is over, is to sow seeds in boxes or pots to be kept indoors. The boxes should have holes for drainage in the bottom, but should not be so open as to let the soil dry. Ordinary garden soil may be used. In the bottom, but on top there should be a lighter soil. Small seeds should be sown on the surface, then fine soil spread over them, then pressed down, but not so hard as to cause the soil to bake. Coarse seed can best be planted in little drills or each seed pressed into the soil and the whole covered with a thin layer of earth. The soil should be gently sprinkled with water immediately after planting. Only the quantity of water which the soil will readily absorb without becoming soggy should be given. The boxes should be watered subsequently whenever the soil becomes dry a little below the surface.

Set the box in the sunlight by the window, but shield it from the direct rays of the sun. Keep the soil well stirred to prevent it baking.

MECHANICAL INGENUITY REQUIRED IN THE STAGING OF "CHAN TIGL EER." Faithful diagram of the manner in which the rooster and other members of the barnyard family are made to appear so true to nature.

Paris.—The wonder of all who have seen the production of "Chan Tigl Eer" is at the natural actions and poses of the barnyard animals. It has required much ingenuity to bring about by mechanical means this life-like result. The diagram above shows clearly the methods adopted. Some of the contrivances through which the actors and actresses have to go are more in the line of acrobatic stunts than acting. One of the most difficult animals to stage, from a mechanical standpoint, was the large dog. By the method used only one man is required and the hind legs are manipulated by wires by him. It took some little time for M. Rostand to train this particular dog to sit down gracefully.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, March 21, 1870.—Not long since a clothing merchant of this city found in his store an old overcoat, and upon searching the pockets, it was found to contain a letter addressed to a man residing in a town in this county. Upon examining the letter the conclusion was reached that the man had taken a new one and left the garment in its place. A letter was therefore addressed to him, telling him that if he would avoid prosecution he must come and pay immediately for the coat he took. In the course of a day or two he came, in a state of great trepidation, and wanted to settle, assuring Year's Addition to World's Gold.

South Africa contributed the greatest amount to the world's stock of gold in the last year, its share being a little over $150,000,000. The United States slightly less than $100,000,000, Australia about $50,000,000, Russia about $25,000,000 and Mexico a little less than $20,000,000.

Moon Catches the Shadow.

When the moon is eclipsed by the earth it is the eastern side of the satellite, or the left hand side as we look at it from the north, that first enters the shadow. This is because the moon travels faster than the shadow of the earth and, overtaking it, passes through.

Dog Brought His Friend.

An English lady, who had been from home some time, was recently greeted on her return by the old sheep dog with great delight. So pleased was the animal that he at once went off to a farm seven miles away to summon another dog—an old chum—to come and see his old mistress. This dog was blind, and, after the introduction, was taken back safely by its canine friend.

Value of Sense of Humor.

Mirth is curative. Grim care, gloom, anxiety, all this rust of life ought to be scooped off by the oil of mirth. It is better than emery. Blessed is he who has a sense of the humorous! He has that which is worth more than money.

—Henry Ward Beecher.
